Liechtenstein's "Konstruktiv" Architecture Prize Hilti P4 plus receives an honourable mention in the prize for sustainable building and refurbishment in the Alps

"Neat Sawtooth"

Dear Colleagues,

We are delighted to be able to inform you that Hilti P4 plus – an industrial building designed in 2009 by ATP Architects and Engineers – received an honourable mention at the "Konstruktiv" architecture awards which were awarded this year for the first time by the Principality of Liechtenstein during the Conference of the Environmental Ministers of the Alpine Nations (Alpenkonferenz) at the beginning of March.

The production and logistics facility in Thüringen/Vorarlberg, which last year became the first Austrian industrial building to receive ÖGNI certification (in silver) had already been the recipient – shortly after completion – of a special mention at the European Architecture Prizes 2009 Energy+Architecture, as well as a special recognition from the Energy Globe Award Vorarlberg 2009.

konstruktiv 2011

Hilti P4 plus was designed by the integrated design team of ATP Architects and Engineers in Innsbruck (PL: Matthias Wehrle), and the post-completion certification process was carried out with the expert accompaniment of the ATP consultancy partner ATP sustain, Munich.

201 projects from seven Alpine nations were entered for the generously endowed and prominently judged award.

The jury invited 25 clients and architects to take part in a second round in which they were required to complete detailed reports covering ecological, commercial, social and architectural aspects of their projects. Site visits were made to four buildings in Switzerland, 15 in Austria (ten of which were in Vorarlberg), two each in Italy and Liechtenstein and one each in Germany and France.

The nominated projects will now feature in an exhibition which will be opened in Slovenia before going on tour. A special issue of the Swiss architecture magazine "Hochparterre" gives a detailed account of the competition and its winners while also offering insight into differences and similarities in the culture, architecture and living environment of the region between Nice and Ljubljana.
